THE TRIBAL COURT FOR THE CONFEDERATED TRIBES AND BANDS OF THE YAKAMA
NATION, and its CHIEF TRIBAL COURT JUDGE TED STRONG, and the CONFEDERATED TRIBES
AND BANDS OF THE YAKAMA
NATION, a Federally Recognized
Tribe,

Defendants. } ORDER GRANTING MOTION FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION, INTER ALIA

BEFORE THE COURT is the Plaintiffs' Motion For Preliminary Injunction (ECF No. 15). The motion was heard with oral argument on an expedited basis on January 7, 2013. This order memorializes and elaborates upon the oral ruling provided by the court on January 7.

Whether a tribal court has exceeded the lawful limits of its jurisdiction is a federal question under 28 U.S.C. §1331. National Farmers Union Insurance Companies v. Crow Tribe Of Indians, 471 U.S. 845, 852-53, 105 S.Ct. 2447 (1985). Accordingly, this court has subject matter jurisdiction to determine whether the Yakama Nation Tribal Court has colorable or plausible jurisdiction to enjoin the Plaintiffs from taking further action to terminate the 1994 Consent

ORDER GRANTING MOTION FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION- 1

1 Decree, as modified in 2006, and to order the Plaintiffs to resume mediation in 2 accordance with the terms of the Consent Decree.

3 The 1994 Consent Decree entered by this court was the result of an action
4 filed by the Yakama Nation in 1993 (CY-93-3050-AAM) which invoked this 5 court's federal question jurisdiction to adjudicate disputes involving treaties
6 between Indian tribes and the United States. In 2004, the Yakama Nation filed a 7 petition (CV-04-3079-CI) to invoke this court's continuing jurisdiction under 8 Paragraph 4.2 of the Consent Decree to enforce the terms of said decree. That 9 petition resulted in the 2006 modification of the Consent Decree embodied in a 10 document titled "Settlement Agreement, Agreed Changes To Consent Decree, 11 And Order." The 2006 modification resulted in the deletion of Paragraphs 4.1 12 and 4.2 of the Consent Decree "for maintaining the continuing jurisdiction of 13 the court."

14 In the present captioned action, the Plaintiffs' Complaint does not attempt 15 to invoke the "continuing jurisdiction" provisions of deleted Paragraphs 4.1 16 and/or 4.2. The fact these provisions were deleted does not divest this court of 17 subject matter jurisdiction over a Consent Decree which it entered. This court 18 retains exclusive inherent jurisdiction over a Consent Decree of which it cannot 19 be divested, even by a stipulation of the parties. As long as the final remedy 20 under a consent decree has not been achieved, the court entering the decree 21 retains subject matter jurisdiction to interpret and enforce the decree's terms.

22 Nehmer v. U.S. Dept. Of Veterans Affairs, 494 F.3d 846, 860 (9th Cir.
23 2007)(“well-established that the district court has the inherent authority to 24 enforce compliance with a consent decree that it has entered in an order, to hold

1 parties in contempt for violating the terms therein, and to modify a decree").¹
 2 Here, the Yakama Nation asserts the final remedy under the Consent Decree has 3 not been achieved. Furthermore, the court entering a consent decree is also the 4 tribunal with the power to determine whether it has been fully complied with 5 and should be dissolved or vacated. Bd. of Educ. of Okla. City Pub. Schs. v.
 6 Dowell, 498 U.S. 237, 247-50, 111 S.Ct. 630 (1991). Here, the State of 7 Washington seeks to dissolve or vacate the Consent Decree.

8 Paragraph 4.1 of the Consent Decree referred to retention of jurisdiction 9 for a period of one year "for the limited purpose of ensuring compliance with 10 this Consent Decree," and Paragraph 4.2 referred to initiation of action "in this 11 Court at any time for the limited purpose of requesting the Court to enforce the 12 terms of this Consent Decree." In the present action, Plaintiffs do not seek to 13 enforce the terms of the Consent Decree or otherwise ensure compliance with 14 the Consent Decree. They seek a formal declaration that the Consent Decree 15 has been terminated.

16 On the other hand, the Yakama Nation is seeking to enforce the terms of 17 the Consent Decree by way of the action it commenced in the Yakama 18 Nation Tribal Court seeking to compel the Plaintiffs to continue to engage in 19 mediation with the Nation. In that regard, it is noted that Paragraph 4.6 of the

21 ¹*Beaver v. Kingman*, 246 Kan. 145, 785 P. 2d 998 (1990), a case relied upon 22 by Defendants, is not to the contrary. The consent judgment in that case had an 23 expiration date written into its terms which had been exceeded. Here, the 24 Consent Decree does not contain such an expiration date. The Beaver court 25 acknowledged that "[u]nless the consent judgment has an expiration date 26 written into its terms, it remains in effect for an indefinite period until it is 27 dissolved." Id. at 148.

1 Consent Decree was not deleted by way of the 2006 modification. Paragraph 2 4.6 provides:

3 Neither the Yakama Indian Nation, nor the State of Washington, 4 nor officers acting on either government's behalf, may petition the 5 Court to enforce this Consent Decree unless (a) the dispute 6 resolution process described in ¶4.7 has been followed in good 7 faith to completion without successful resolution, or unless (b) the 8 other party fails to enter into the dispute resolution process or 9 terminates the process before its completion.

10 (Emphasis added).

11 “The Court” is an obvious reference to the federal district court which 12 entered the Consent Decree. Pursuant to the plain terms of Paragraph 4.6, the 13 Yakama Nation was obligated to bring its petition to enforce the Consent
 14 Decree in this court, alleging the State of Washington “terminate[d] the [dispute 15 resolution process] before its completion.” Paragraph 4.6 does not authorize 16 that petition to be brought in tribal court

17 Paragraph H of the 2006 “Settlement Agreement, Agreed Changes To 18 Consent Decree, And Order” states:

19 The parties agree that the provisions of ¶4.1 and ¶4.2 for 20 maintaining the continuing jurisdiction of the court should be 21 deleted. The parties agree to resolve further disputes exercising 22 mutual good faith on a government to government basis and, to the 23 extent they are unable to resolve such disputes, the dispute 24 resolution process in ¶4.7 shall apply.

25 (Emphasis added). Paragraph 4.6 specifically refers to the dispute resolution 26 process of Paragraph 4.7 and allows either party to petition “the Court” (the 27 federal district court) to enforce the Consent Decree if the dispute resolution 28 process has been followed in good faith to completion without successful 1 resolution, or a party fails to enter into the dispute resolution process or 2 terminates the process before its completion. Because of Paragraph 4.6, it is not 3 reasonable for the Yakama Nation to believe the tribal court can be used to 4 enforce the dispute resolution clause at Paragraph 4.7. And because of

1 Paragraph 4.6 and this court's exclusive inherent jurisdiction over a Consent
2 Decree entered by it, it was not necessary for Defendants to expressly disclaim 3 tribal court jurisdiction in the Consent Decree.

4 Because of this court's exclusive inherent and express jurisdiction to 5 enforce compliance with the Consent Decree, and to dissolve or vacate the 6 Consent Decree, the Yakama Nation Tribal Court's exercise of subject matter
7 jurisdiction is neither colorable or plausible.² Accordingly, exhaustion of tribal 8 court remedies is not required. It is "plain" that tribal court jurisdiction is 9 lacking and therefore, exhaustion would serve no purpose other than delay.

10 Nevada v. Hicks, 533 U.S. 353, 369, 121 S.Ct. 2304 (2001).

11 The Yakama Nation has waived its sovereign immunity to the present 12 action by virtue of the Nation having commenced the previous action which 13 resulted in the Consent Decree over which this court retains jurisdiction.
14 Because Yakama Nation Tribal Court Judge Strong acted outside the scope of 15 his authority in asserting jurisdiction, it is proper to enter injunctive relief 16 against him. Even were there not a waiver of tribal sovereign immunity, 17 however, the action against Judge Strong would not be barred. "Tribal 18 sovereign immunity does not bar a suit for prospective relief against tribal 19

20 ²Because of the Consent Decree, the court deems it unnecessary to discuss at 21 length the principles articulated in U.S. Supreme Court and Ninth Circuit 22 decisions governing tribal jurisdiction over non-Indian entities, other than to 23 agree with the Plaintiffs that the Consent Decree does not fit within the 24 consensual relationship exception set forth in Montana v. United States, 450
25 U.S. 544, 565, 101 S.Ct. 1245 (1981), and to observe that there is no authority
26 which has held that a State sovereign entity is subject to the jurisdiction of a 27 tribal court.

1 officers allegedly acting in violation of federal law.” Burlington N. R.R. Co. v.
2 Blackfeet Tribe, 924 F.2d 899, 901 (9th Cir. 1991), overruled on other grounds
3 by Big Horn County Elec. Coop., Inc. v. Adams, 219 F.3d 944, 953 (9th Cir.
4 2000).

5 “A plaintiff seeking a preliminary injunction must establish that he is 6 likely to succeed on the merits, that he is likely to suffer irreparable harm in the 7 absence of preliminary relief, that the balance of the equities tips in his favor, 8 and that an injunction is in the public interest.” Winter v. Natural Resources 9 Defense Council, 555 U.S. 7, 129 S.Ct. 365, 374 (2008). “A preliminary 10 injunction is an extraordinary remedy never awarded as of right.” Id. at 376.
11 There is a strong likelihood the Plaintiffs will prevail on their argument that the 12 Yakama Nation Tribal Court lacks jurisdiction to adjudicate the parties’ dispute 13 regarding the Consent Decree. Furthermore, the Plaintiffs are likely to suffer 14 irreparable harm if they are compelled to litigate the dispute in a forum which 15 does not have jurisdiction. For the same reason, the balance of the equities tips 16 in favor of Plaintiffs. Defendants are not deprived of a forum to entertain their 17 claims because those claims will be heard in this court instead of tribal court.³ It 18 is in the public interest that the parties’ dispute be resolved in the forum which 19 is properly vested with subject matter jurisdiction over the dispute.

20 Plaintiffs' Motion For Preliminary Injunction (ECF No. 15) is 21 GRANTED and it is hereby ORDERED that:
